The Murderer of Adolf Deutsch to be Hung December 16th.

We clip the following from the Knoxville Chronicle of Nov. 9th : Yesterday the case of Andy Willams, olored, convicted of the murder of Adolf Deutsch, in Hamilton county, in 1867. for which crime he was convicted and sentenced to be hung, was disposed of. He was sentenced to be hung on the 16th of December. This was an appeal to the Supreme Court, and the opinion rendered by Chief Justice Nicholson, Justice is slow, but it is sure. The crime for which this man is to be hung is still fresh in the minds of our old citizens, but it is well for the benefit of some of the new comers, that we should recall the circumstances. Adolf Deutsch was a younger brother of Henry Deutsch, the well known watchmaker of this city, and was a partner in the business. He was a young man of fine talents, good looking, and universally esteemed. Indeed, we doubt if he had an enemy in the city. On the morning of the 5th day of November, 1867, he started into the country towards Bird's mill, to recover some watches which had been stolen from the store by Andy Williams, the negro now under sentence of death for his murder. He did not return at the time he was expected, and towards night his brothers became alarmed, and parties were sent out in search of him, but failed to find him, Early next morning, Wednesday, Nov. 6th, another party was organized to search morning his lifeless body was found by Esq. Blackford, stripped to the shirt, lying in the woods, within 300 yards of Sheriff Connor's house. A coroner's inquest was held which developed the fact that Mr. Deutsch was last seen alive near Connor's house, which the negro Andy Williams following him with a club which he was proven to have picked up near the house of Wm. Rogers.

The first blow was struck from behind with the club. The negro confessed that he committed the crime, and said that after he had stripped the body, he saw that Mr. Deutsch was not quite dead, and thought he had better finish him, which he did by another blow. The negro ran to Georgia, but was hotly pursued, and was finally captured by some farmers on Lookout Mountain some

War News from Europe. The failure of the negotiations for an armistice continues the leading topic, and th re is a disposition in some quarters in England to attribute the failure to the "fatuity of the French." From the gennel bored by the Cuzco River, in the east- ute more and the Mississippi steamer eral character of the dispatches, however, it would seem that the French have acted with quite as much frankness and fairness as the Prussians. > The Prussians, however, have resolved to push the war to its extreme, and it is announced at Versuilles that the bombardment of Paris will commence to-day. Similar announcements have been made before. It is held by French authorities that no bombardment of the city is possible until the forts are taken and that the Prussians will not be able for two weeks pain.
